

Prophetic Words for October 14, 2007

If you feel trapped, and you think there's no way out, it's probably because you're trying to dig yourself out. You won't ever dig yourself out, but there's always a way out. And it starts by praising. No matter what's going on you just have to praise Him. For Lord we know that you are good. We will shout it from the rooftops. And then we will be free, because we won't be digging ourselves out anymore.

We all have an earthly father who may have failed us in some way, but we all have a heavenly Father who loves us now and always.

I don't know whether this word is just for me or whether it's for the whole, but I'll offer it. If it ministers to you, please take it up, if it doesn't, please feel free to let it go. I believe that what the Lord was saying to me was, "Yes I have changed your life. I've only changed, though, what you have given to Me. I can only change what you will yield unto Me. Have you yielded unto me your frustrations, your anger, your bitterness, your resentment? Have you laid down at my altar the offering of yourself, and your bitter thoughts and your angry frustrations? Have you laid down an offering of those things that are hurting you? Are you holding onto those? Are you holding onto those, My child? For you shall not grow in those areas you have not yielded unto Me? You shall not continue to change, unless you continue to yield, unless you continue to give to Me those things that are hurting you. I bid you, My child, give unto me all the hurts as well as the joys, the frustrations, as well as the successes. Give unto me the offering of yourself, your whole self, not just that which you think I want. Give unto Me all of yourself. Give unto Me you, that I may give unto you Me, says the Lord.

In preparation for going to the Lazarus weekend, this coming weekend, and what we were reading last night, that confirmed Father Bill and Father Bill confirmed what I read. What we have to do is say "the spirit of anger depart in the Name of Jesus" and it will be gone. We don't ask, we demand for that to happen.
